

On the edge of Biscayne Bay, LILLI rises with quiet certainty

LILLI is a boutique collection of 117 waterfront residences in Miami's Edgewater neighborhood, its name inspired by the lily, a symbol of balance and quiet grace. This sense of balance is reflected in the design by Adrian Smith + Gordon Gill Architecture, the firm behind UNA Residences and whose principal, Adrian Smith, designed the Burj Khalifa.

The residences bring together nature and architecture in a singular expression of elegance. Fluid and curvilinear in its appearance, LILLI's softly rounded corners and articulated balcony elements create a cadence of light and shadow across the facade. Every view is deliberate, framing the bay, city, and ocean beyond.

At LILLI, a focus on health, wellness, and longevity is reflected in a curated amenity package organized around four Living Pillars: Movement, Recovery, Nourishment, and Connection.

In practice, this means a fitness studio guided by circuit-based programs, tailored to individual goals. A spa with treatments calibrated to optimize and enhance resident's daily lives. An infrared sauna, a body composition analyzer, and recovery tools designed to compound benefits over time.

Culinary offerings enjoyed in the Waterfront Garden. A rooftop designed for living: sunrise rituals, open-air workshops, dining experiences, and community programming across every season. Living greenery selected to promote air quality and emotional wellbeing, supported by a high efficiency air filtration system integrated throughout the building.
